AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

The Agricultural Club assinged two members to prepare papers to be read at the weekly meetings. Following are the two papers prepared this week:

Opportunity of the Modern Farmer

Today success comes to the farmer by keeping up with the ever changing conditions, and by developing a well balanced business program to go along with the tilling of the soil. Farming requires varied information as well as zeal and industry. It needs the application of commercial

The average farmers of today are well up in the practical lines of farming, but are found to be deficiant in some of the most important require-ments. They can produce good crops and can market them to good advantage, but he overlooks demands of the market and is sometimes working away at the crops which will bring him the least. They are classed among the most industrious, but their industry often truns the delightful vocation of farming into drudgery. Their children are brought up under this influence and they leave the farm as soon as they are able to hustle for, themselves. There the farmers are deprived of their best helpand rural saciety loses one of its best eliments.

The life of the farmer need not be irksome. In fact it ought to be more delightful than that of any other, better homes, more social enjoyment, greater contentment and happiness will come to those on the farm when they grasp the eternal truth, that they have the noblest vocation on earth, and that the farm can be made to produce just as big an income as any other kind of work.

(From the Ogden Examiner.)

Realizing for some time that Ogden once when such accidents happen. The wound heals promptly and soon does away with the annoyance of a bandage. heatre-goers were fond of a real musical show, the management of the Ogden theatre secured the Frank Rich company for a short engagement and while a good show was promised, a real surprise was given the patrons of the Ogden in the performance given last night. The company is called a musical comedy organization, but in reality it can be classed as a light opera show for the company contains some of the best talent seen in Ogden in a long time. For the opening bill, The Girl From
